

INTIMATIONS.

SIGNOR and SIGNORA A. VITTO
4, OLD BATTERY STREET,
Dog to announce that they are prepared to give
LESSONS in SINGING and on the PIANO.
FORTE.
TERMS SPECIALLY MODERATE.
Hongkong, 17th June, 1884. [H]

---

TO BE LET.
THE DETACHED RESIDENCE
"CHALGOWNER" on the Causeway
For Particulars, apply to HO KAI,
10, Bank Buildings,
Queen's Road.
Hongkong, 17th June, 1884. [H]

---

WBREWER has just received ment of Cheap HATS and SHOES consisting of

- Gentlemen's Lawn Tennis Shoes, 2 kinds.
- Lady's Kid Lawn Tennis Shoes.
- Gentlemen's Canvas Summer Shoes.
- Youth's Canvas Summer Shoes.
- French Buck Strap Indoor Ladies' Shoes.
- Ladies' Morocco Leather Shoes, Court Shoe.
- Glacé - Walking Shoes, Gentlemen's Patent.
- Leather - Walking Shoes, Gentlemen's Walking Shoes.
- Children's Boots and Shoes.
- Chinese Gorden's Wife.
- Ceylon in 1883.
- Gill's River of Golden Sand - New Edition.
- Giles Chinese Literature.
- Mark Twain's New Book.
- A. J. Lee's American List of New Children's Books.

and Envelopes.
A Large Variety of Cheap Commercial Stationery.
POPULAR MUSIC—
Dreamfances Waltz and Song.
Elben on the Rhine Waltz and Song.
Mysotos Waltz, Two New Popular Compositions.
Operas.

---

FOR SHANGHAI.

for CHEFOO, TIENTSIN, NEWCHWANG, HANKOW, and Ports on the YANGTZE.)
HE Steamship

"GLENFINLAS."
Captain Jacobs, will be despatched as ab
TO-DAY (TUESDAY) the 17th instant.
FOUR P.M.
For Freight or Passage, apply to
JARDINE, MATHESON & Co
Hongkong, 16th June, 1884.

FOR BANGKOK DIRECT.

THE SCOTTISH ORIENTAL STEAM

THE Company's Steamship
 "PHRA CHOM KLAO,"
 Captain H. Stratton, will be despatched for above Port on THURSDAY, the 19th inst.
 at TWO P.M.
 For Freight or Passage, apply to
YUEN FAT HONG
 Agents.
 Hongkong, 17th June, 1884. — [

---

FOR HAIPHONG.
THE Steamship
 "TRIUMPH,"

above Port at THREE O'CLOCK, when
For Freight or Passage, apply to
LEE WING & Co.,
No. 13, Queen's Street
Hongkong, 17th June, 1884.

FOR MANILA DIRECT.
THE Steamship
"EOLUS"
Captain Tremova, will be despatched as on FRIDAY, the 20th instant, at THREE
For Freight or Passage, apply to
DUNN, MELBYE & CO.,
Hongkong, 16th June, 1884.

STEAM TO BOMBAY VIA STRAIT
THE P. & O. S. N. Co.'s Steamship
"GERLON"
will leave for the above place on SATUR-DAY the 21st instant at THREE P.M.

Hongkong, 16th June, 1884.
 FOR MANILA DIRECT.
 Spanish Steamer
 "EMU,"
 Capt. Blanco, will be despatched for the
 Port on SATURDAY, the 21st instant
 FIVE P.M.
 For Freight or Passage, apply to
 REMEDIOS &
 Hongkong, 16th June, 1884.
 "SHIRE" LINE OF STEAMERS

FOR HONGKONG, SUEZ CANAL.
The Steamship
"PLINTSHIRE".
Hajine, Commander, will be despatched for above Ports on or about the 24th instant.
For Freight or Passage, apply to
ADAMSON, BELL &
Agents.
Hongkong, 17th June, 1884.

HONGKONG AND CHINA GAS COMPANY, LIMITED.

THE TRANSFER BOOKS of this Company will be CLOSED from the instant until the 2nd proximo. Both

HENRY R. H. MARTY
Manager.
Hongkong, 14th June, 1884.

---

W A K E E,
HAS FOR SALE
BEST QUALITY OF STEAM CO
No. 23, WING KAT STREET,
HONGKONG.
Hongkong, 14th June, 1884.

---

NOTICE.
NOTICE is hereby given that by provisions made under a Bill of dated the 15th day of April 1884 made be part and the Undersigned of the part. I have This Day entered and possession of the Premises known as

 "INTERNATIONAL PRINTING, OFFICE,"
 7, Hollywood Road, and will transport all Business from henceforth for my own account and name.
 Hongkong, dated the 14th day of June,
 1934 J. S. JUDGE

WANTED for one of the Coast Protectorate a YOUNG GERMAN for Board and General Office Work.
 Applications, with references, to be sent to
 N. N.,
 Office of the "Daily Press,"
 Hongkong, 12th June, 1934.

NOTICE.

HAI PHONG.
C. IMBERT AND CHESNAY,
COMMISSION AGENTS
FOR IMPORTS AND EXPORTS
HAI PHONG.
Are willing to undertake Commission
Firms in the Far East and receive Shipments of Goods.
Communications in English should be addressed to Mr. IMBERT.

REACT EXPECTED

THE ENGLISH MAIL.
The P. and O. steamer Rosetta, with English mail, left Singapore at 5 p.
12th, and may be expected here on the morning of the 18th inst.

THE AMERICAN MAIL.
The O. & C. steamer Oceania, with American mail, left San Francisco

STEAMERS EXPECTED.
The D. D. R. steamer Hesperia is expected here on the afternoon of the 11th, here on or about the 18th inst.
The Austro-Hungarian Lloyd's steamer, left Singapore on the 13th, and is due on the 20th inst.
The O. S. S. Co.'s steamer Dresden left Singapore on the 15th, and is due about the 22nd inst.
The E. & A. steamer Catterthun is

On the 3rd, and may be expected here on the 27th inst.

—To A. C. J. and Straits S. S. Co. Naples last Sydney, N.S.W., on which may be expected to arrive here on 27th instant.

POST-OFFICE NOTICE.

The Postal Guide for 1884, revised will be found in the Daily Press, p. 335 large edition, p. 633 small edition is the only authorized complete Postal Information published in Hongkong.

—The authorised List of Mails in connection with this paper is the one revised each day in our Extra, which is corrected to a much later hour than that below.

A MAIL WILL CLOSE.

—For Shanghai.—Per Glenloch, at 17h45 inst., at 2.30 P.M.

—Per Swatow, Amoy, & Fuzhou.—Per Tung-tse, to-morrow, the 18th inst., at 3.30 P.M.

—Per Tientsin, Shanghai, and Canton.—Per Townsville, Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne.—Per Kedong, to-morrow, the 18th inst., at 3.30 P.M.

—Per Singapore, Port Darwin, Tharaka, Ockfords, Townsville, Brisbane, Sydney, Melbourne, & Adelaide, &c., &c., to-morrow, the 18th inst., at 3.30 P.M.

—Per Straits and Bombay.—Per the Saturday, the 15th inst., at 2.30 P.M.

MAILS BY THE BRITISH P.A.C.

The British Contract Packet Hydra will be despatched on THURSDAY, 15th inst., with mails for the United Kingdom, Australia, Hongkong, and the Straits Settlements, Batavia, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Egypt, Malta, and G.N.B. This Packet carries no mails to or from Australian Colonies.

The usual hours will be observed for the Mails, &c.

MAILS BY THE FRENCH PA
The French Contract Packet, Septe be despatched on THURSDAY, inst., with Mails to the United Europe, and places beyond, viz. N
Saigon, Straits Settlements, Batavia,
Ceylon, India (via Madras), the Am
Colonies, Aden, Natal and the Cap
Mails, and Gibraltar.
This usual hours will be observed i the Mails, &c.

HOURS FOR CLOSING THE CO
MAILS.
THE FRENCH MAIL.

Day before Office hours.
5 P.M. Money Order Office closes. P closes. The night box, which open out of office hours.
Day of Departure.
7 A.M. Post Office opens.
10 A.M. Receipts of letters ceases. I all printed matter and patterns c
11 A.M. Mail closes, except for Late L 11.10 A.M. Letters may be posted with of 10 cents unit
11.40 A.M. Receipts of Post Office closes
11.45 A.M. Late Letters may be posted the packet with Late P's of 10 Ce time of departure.

THE ENGLISH MAIL.

The following hours are observed i
Mails, &c., by the British Contract Pac
Day of Departure.
2.00 P.M.—Money Order Office closes.
2.00 P.M.—Receipts of Letters ceases.
3.00 P.M. of all printed matter and patter
3.00 P.M.—Mail closed, except for Late
3.10 P.M.—Letters may be posted with

It is to be noted that the Post Office closes at 3.30 P.M. on the day when the Post Office closes at 3.30 P.M. - Late Letters may be posted in the packet with late fee of 10 cents at the time of departure.

The Post Office declines all responsibility for Unregistered Letters containing Jewel and where Registration has been neglected, and where the Post Office declines all responsibility for letters.

LETTERS FOR THE UNITED STATES BY AIR MAIL

When it is desired to forward Letters to the United States by a sailing ship which is called as carrying a mail, it is only necessary to place the letters in the ordinary envelope with the name of the ship, and prepaid per half ounce as usual. The Post Office undertakes the duty of obtaining necessary papers and despatches, and the correspondence is requested that the letters be posted in at least one day before the date fixed for sailing.

The Post Office declines all responsibility for Unregistered Letters containing Jewel and where Registration has been neglected, and where the Post Office declines all responsibility for letters.

and, where Registration has been neglected, makes no enquiries into alleged losses of letters.

T. ALGAR AND COMPANY
HOUSE AND GARDEN
RENTS COLLECTED
BROWN, JONES & CO.,
UNDEBTAKERS
MOVING FURNITURE,
MONUMENTS ERECTED.
6, QUEEN'S ROAD EAST.

NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR I

Neither the CAPTAIN, the ADMIRAL,
OWNER, will be RESPONSIBLE FOR DEBT contracted by the OFFICER or the of the following Vessels during their Hongkong Harbour —

ALEXE, Gun, bark, H. Schluencher, —
& Co.
ALEXA, Brül. bark, G. Roßb.—Adams

id
3
8
10

& Co.
CAMBRIDIA. Brit. str. A. Willgoose.—
GARDENING. Brit. str., Wm. Jack.—A.
Bell & Co.
CART. PUTTER. Gr. blk. C. Machi.—S.
& Co.
C. T. HOOK. Brit. str. M. Jervis.—L.
T. EUSE. Gr. ship. H. Winters.—Melchers.
FRIEDLO. Gr. str., H. Broke.—Wieler.
GLIMLANK. Brit. str. W. E. Duke.—J.
Soren & Co.
GLIMLANK. Brit. str. J. Wright.—B.
Lamb.
GRANT ADMIRAL. American ship. J. F.
—Caplain.
JAPAN. Brit. str. T. S. Gardner.—D.
3029, Sons & Co.
MENDOTA. Brit. bark. D. W. Carter.—O.
NORBERTON. Brit. str. M. E. Walker.—
son & Co.
OJMAN. Brit. str. Brown.—Soy Shing.
THE OTHERS. Brit. blk. H. Kah.
—Chessa.

100

EXTRACTS.

IN AFTER DAYS.

In after days, when grasses grow
O'er the tomb where I shall lie,
Though well or ill the world adjust
My slender clasp to honored dust,
I shall not question nor reply.
I shall not see the morning light,
I shall not hear the night-wind sigh,
I shall be mute, as all men must—
In after days!

And yet, now living, faint were I,
That some one should be true to me,
Saying: "He held his pen in trust
To art, not to a selfish end."
Will you not? Then let my memory die
In after days!

Author: DOUGLAS, in Century for May.

A GHOST'S FALSE STORY.

Finis Allen, who is registered as convict No. 2993, has been serving a life sentence in the Penitentiary, Iowa, since November, 1879, for the murder of John Long, an old farmer of Tremont County. He was convicted on the testimony of Long's wife, who confessed to having been an accomplice in the crime, and now, after having been imprisoned over four years, the Senate Investigating Committee has concluded that Allen was perfectly innocent of the crime, and has unanimously reported in favor of his immediate pardon. The testimony upon which this report is based is as follows: "The most curious and circumstantial evidence that ever was told, and has in it a supernatural element which adds greatly to the strangeness of the tale. It is thus told by a Des Moines correspondent of the New York Times: 'Finis Allen is the son of a farmer, but he was delirious from his blood, and instead of regarding his brother, on the farm, he directed himself to horse-work, and became a very good cook. Early in 1879, when he was eighteen years old, young Allen went to live with John Long, at Mantle, Fremont County, by whom he was hired to build Mrs. Long in the house. John Long was seventy-two at this time, and Finis proved a valuable addition to the household of the old couple. Matters went quietly along until January 16, 1879, when John Long was found early in the morning dead in his barn, lying in a stall almost under the heels of a vicious colt. There were several cuts and bruises on his body, and everything indicated that he had been kicked to death by the colt. There was blood on the planks and wall of the stable near the body, and the wounds were apparently such as would result from the kick of a sharp-shod horse. In both hands the dead man had grasped the litter of the stable so firmly that the hands had to be soaked in hot water before they could be opened. The premises were thoroughly searched for evidences of foul play, but nothing was found. A light snow had fallen early in the night, but there were no blood stains or unusual tracks outside the stable. Mrs. Long told the coroner's jury that she and her husband had been awakened about three o'clock in the morning by the noise of the horses kicking and plunging in the stable. Mrs. Long went to the stable and, after waiting for him to return for some time, she followed him. Upon finding him dead she ran to the house of Daniel Torrance, a farmer, and aroused him. Torrance woke Finis Allen, who had been sleeping up stairs, and the two men removed the body from the heels of the colt. The body was taken to the stable and, when examining the premises, returned a verdict that Long had been kicked to death by the horse, and the body was buried. A meeting of the jury was then held, and Mrs. Long produced a will made just before his death by her husband in which all the property was left to her. She declared that she intended to leave the estate for herself and Finis Allen, who had been a better boy to her than any of her own sons. A quarrel followed over the property, and suspicion began to be aroused. About this time the newspapers were full of the Mack murder case in Wisconsin, in which it was proved that a wife had conspired with a hired man to murder her husband, to prevent succession, the body was thrown under the heels of a horse. There was much shaking of heads and comment over the similarity of the two cases, and finally Long's body was dug up and a second inquest was held. The doctors disagreed about the character of the wounds, and the verdict was that the old man came to his death 'from injuries inflicted by the kicking of the horse, or in some other manner to the jury unknown.' A reward was offered for further information, and detectives were at once put to work on the case. Mrs. Long was a member of the non-polygamous branch of the Mormon Church, and she had implicit faith in a Mormon elder of the neighborhood, named Matthews, who was expected to hold converse with the spirits of the dead. This elder, after the second inquest, was confronted, as he claimed, by the ghost of John Long, which told him that Finis Allen killed him and threw him in the stable behind the horse. The elder reported this ghostly interview first to a lawyer, who laughed at it, and afterwards to some of his followers, who heard with interest and credulity. Meanwhile the detectives had been working on Mrs. Long, and finally one of them induced her to make a confession, and on this a preliminary information was filed, and both Mrs. Long and Finis Allen were arrested and thrown into jail to await the action of the grand jury. When the grand jury met, the next day was told that the ghostly evidence she would be released at once. The Mormon elder sat directly in front of her, and made her 'look him squarely in the eye,' and by this and other mesmerizing performances the old woman was induced to confirm the revelation made to her spiritual adviser by the ghost, and to confess that 'Finis made away with the old man.' An inquest was then found against Allen, and his trial began in November, 1879. Mrs. Long swore that Finis came downstairs in the night and attacked the old man in bed, striking him on the head with a hammer. Long sprang from the bed, and in the struggle which followed the handle of the hammer was broken, and Finis then killed Long with the hammer. She and Finis burned a blanket that was stained with blood, and washed the stain out of the carpet, and Finis then took the body to the stable, and passing behind the heels of five horses, threw it where it was found, back of the vicious colt in the sixth stall. The old woman described the hammer, which had been on the floor for years, and was of a size and shape that would attract attention. A hammer answering the description was put in evidence, and Finis Allen was convicted of murder in the first degree, and sentenced to the penitentiary for life. The hammer was the connecting link in the chain of evidence, and this has now apparently been broken by the testimony just secured by the Senate Committee. The inconsistency of the story that Long was killed in the house is shown by an affidavit of Daniel Torrance, who was the first man at the stable on the night of the murder. He swears that there was no blood on the snow, as there would have been had the body been carried to the stable, and that opposite the stable on the stable was a spot of blood which had very appearance of having spattered on it and then run down. A farmer named L. P. Allen makes an affidavit that he assisted Long in building a corn crib in November, 1878, and was left off."

THE OLDEST NAME.

Three commercial travellers, meeting at a West of England inn one winter evening, had a hearty supper together. Supper over the three found some difficulty in allocating their respective shares of the bill, but after a long and somewhat heated dispute, by proposing that whoever had the "oldest name" among them should go free, the expenses being shared by the other two. This amendment being promptly accepted, No. 1 produced a card inscribed "Richard Eve," which No. 2 trumped with "Adam Brown," which No. 3, a poor veteran with a hunched back, laid down his card with the quiet confidence of a great general making a decisive movement, and remarked with a chuckle, "I don't much think you'll beat this 'un, guv'nors." And he was right, for the name was "Mr. B. Gunning."

GOODS AT A GREENLAND STORE.

The list of the goods which are supposed to be obtainable at the store is very comprehensive, embracing everything that the heart can desire between gunpowder and lavender-water, and as the selling prices are very low, it is a very attractive prospect. The traveller would find this a cheap country. It is as well to point out that a great many of the articles set forth exist only in the list, and that all eatables, very commonly run short in the summer months just before the arrival of the annual ships. I came once to a settlement where nothing was to be obtained, and where the only thing which was left in the store except china-bowls, fish-hooks, and loafers (inches), and as I was very short of food at the time, the problem presented itself, which of these three articles is the most nutritious?—Good Words.

TRASH.

When Verdi was putting the last touches to Il Trovatore, he was visited in his study by a privileged friend. The friend was one of the most famous musicians and critics of the time, and he was permitted to look at the score and run over the "avril chorus" on the piano. Verdi rubbed his hands and chuckled. "Now look at this, and this," he said. "Bubbish!" The composer rose and embraced him with a burst of joy. "What a dear friend!" cried Verdi. "I have been making a popular opera. In it I resolved to please everybody except the great judges, the chaste, like you. Had I pleased you, I should have pleased no one else. What you say assures me of success. In three months Il Trovatore will be sung in every theatre and whistled and barrel-organs all over Italy."

SHOW YOUR HANDS.

Entering an Austin watchmaker's establishment, a country negro produced the hands of a clock, and observed to the astonished watchmaker: "Boss, I want you to fix up dese hands. Day jess don't keep no kere time for moah den six months. Vore has you got de clock? I interested de German professor of the establishment. 'Outat de house on Injun creek.' 'You you brings him in?' 'Whaffor you want de clock?' 'I wants to fix dot clock-miss yer hands.' 'Of course you fixes it wid yer hands.' 'I must hab de clock.' 'Didn't I tole yer der was wuffin de matter wid dot clock? I hab de hands, and I hab de clock as you can tinkin wid it, and charge me like de deble. Gif me bak dem hands,' and taking them away from the designing German, he went out to hunt up another establishment.—Texas Siftings.

ANXIETY OF PROFESSIONAL SINGERS.

As an illustration of the constant anxiety of artists concerning their powers, Mrs. Sim Reeves, wife of the tenor, tells how one famous prima donna refused to sit down at all on a day when she was to sing. "No," she would walk about the room, talking, perhaps, singing, sometimes even with her needle and thread, but never sitting down the livelong day until the performance was over. "Why, I remember well enough how one day on the morning of a performance Jennie Lind (Mrs. Goldschmidt), Mr. Reeves, Otto Goldschmidt, and myself were in the room, and through the morning Jennie Lind and my husband were nervous, and tempers and tempers were nervous. They tolerated her for the sake of the love they bore their host and the charms of each other's society. Once Lady Holland turned to a poet who was dining at her table, and said, 'I hear, Mr., that you are publishing a volume of poems; can't you suppress it?' And even Moore, who had written a life of Sheridan in the happy days of his youth, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I fear.' He must, however, have had one moment of sweet revenge when Lady Holland was published, and this lady, who presided over the most literary society in London, made such a success of it, that it was a really good subject, was crushed by his ladyship's pious remark. 'This will be but a dull book of yours, this Sheridan, I